June 2019

June Speaker~~~

Traci Ison Schafer
Topic ~~ World Building

Traci Ison Schafer lives in Ada, Oklahoma, and is a Price Analyst for the United States Air Force. She's a native of Ohio and started her career at the infamous Wright-Patterson Air Force Base, which she used as the backdrop for her first book, the science fiction novel The Anuan Legacy.

Traci is current Past President of the Oklahoma City Writers and is an officer on the Executive Board of the Oklahoma Writers' Federation, Inc., where she serves as First Vice President.

She remains active in the writing community in the Dayton, Ohio, area where she's a founding member of the critique group The Plot Sisters (est. 2012) and has served as a panelist at the Antioch Writers' Workshop at the University of Dayton.

Traci has a master's degree in business, a bachelor's degree in science education, and has earned teaching certifications in several science fields including physics, astronomy, and earth science. She's curious about all things beyond the physical world such as aliens, reincarnation, and psychic abilities, making them among her favorite writing topics.

Traci's writing has earned several awards, including Independent Publisher Book Awards (IPPY) Silver Medalist in Sci-fi/Fantasy/Horror E-book; National Indie Excellence Award (NIEA) Winner in Science Fiction; NIEA Finalist in New Adult; and Finalist for the Independent Author Network (IAN) Science Fiction Book of the Year. When not busy writing.

Traci enjoys spending time with her family.

Bring a piece of paper~~~Traci will include an interactive exercise.

President's Message Laci Liter

...One kid is holding a shovel like a baseball bat while the other pitches dirt clumps, wait no, those are rocks hurtling straight for the windows. In all fairness, I did tell them to go outside and play in the dirt, but rocks?!? I am pinned in the second story nursery by a baby who only just nodded of...

...No wonder I haven't been getting much writing done. Fast forward to a new morning. The kids are all sleeping, even the baby, and I drink my tea in peace. I might get some writing done. The giddy thought dances around while I bring out the laptop and pour a new fresh cup of tea. But when I sit down, ...

What? Why? I've waited so long! It's been days and days (maybe a week? What month is it?) Why are the words not pouring out of me?

President's Message

...It happens again on another morning. Clearly, something is not working. Right at the moment I feel as if I might burst if I don't release some creative pressure, I draw a blank. [Insert curse word of choice]. The WIP I've spent the last year on is now on hiatus and I'm left with empty, fumbling hand...

"Here is a lesson in creative writing. First rule: Do not use semicolons. They are transvestite hermaphrodites representing absolutely nothing. All they do is show you've been to college."

--Kurt Vonnegut Jr.

Traci's Latest

"Read, read, read. Read everything--trash, classics, good and bad, and see how they do it. Just like a carpenter who works as an apprentice and studies the master. Read! You'll absorb it. Then write. If it's good, you'll find out. If it's not, throw it out of the window."

--William Faulkner

Victoria Spencer isn't satisfied with her internship at the Air Force Research Laboratories, so why can't she stop thinking about a classified project that doesn't involve her? Unable to resist the pull the project has on her, Victoria breaks into the restricted lab where the project is located and finds a captured alien pilot. Fearing what the government might do to him, she helps him escape. But the extraterrestrial, Gaige, has a secret--Victoria is the reason he's on Earth. As the pair flee from federal agents, who seem to be backed by a force beyond Earth means, Victoria is drawn closer to Gaige, his world, and his people. She soon realizes her life is no longer her own, and a hidden power lying within her could be the key to unlocking her destiny . . . or lead to her destruction.

Not that we are nosy, we just want to know what you are writing, where and when it's published, sold, if it won a prize, etc.

"When your story is ready for rewrite, cut it to the bone. Get rid of every ounce of excess fat. This is going to hurt; revising a story down to the bare essentials is always a little like murdering children, but it must be done."

— Stephen King

“Start writing, no matter what. The water does not flow until the faucet is turned on.”

— Louis L’Amour
